

Ho-Chunk Nation Archaeologist expert in Indian Mounds

May is Wisconsin Historic Preservation and Archeology Month, so be sure to bring your excavating tools and curiosity to Nitschke Mounds Park. The area has many unique archaeology features.

Ho-Chunk Nation Archaeologist Jay Toth is an expert in effigy, conical and linear mounds features of the park.

“The land at Nitschke Mounds Park is very unique,” said Toth. “It has a large number of mounds in a small area. Many of the mounds have been there for thousands of years. It’s important people understand the history and symbolism behind these Indian mounds so we can help preserve them for generations to come.”

For more information about the park visit www.dodgeparks.com

##May 2010##